A. P. SKEED, EDITOR, DIES

HAD PUBLISHED CLEARMONT NEWS SINCE 1898.

STRICKEN LAST FRIDAY

Funeral Services To Be Held Tomorrow Or Thursday.—A Native Of Illinois.

A. P. Skeed, 75 years old, editor of the Clearmont News since 1889, died at 5:25 o'clock yesterday afternoon at his home in Clearmont. He sustained a third stroke of paralysis last Friday. The funeral will be held tomorrow or Thursday afternoon at the M. E. Church in Clearmont. The pastor, the Rev. William Pittker, will be assisted by the Rev. W. W. Laughlin of the Clearmont Baptist Church. Burial will be in the Clarinda, Ia., cemetery.

Mr. Skeed was born September 24, 1851, at Knoxville, Illinois. His parents were Samuel and Emily (Briggs) Skeed, both natives of Ohio. The father was a cooper by trade. He died at the age of 77 and the mother of the editor died when 87.

There were seven children in the family, three of whom grew to maturity. A. P. Skeed grew to maturity in his native city, gaining his education in the grade and high schools there. He determined when but a lad to devote his life to newspaper work and entered the office of the Knox County Republican in 1869, remaining there until 1872.

In the spring of that year he went to Leon, Ia., and became associated with the Decatur County Journal, with which he remained until the fall of 1877. Mr. Skeed then moved to Essex, Page county, Ia., and worked on the Index there until the fall of 1881, when he went to Coin, Ia., and assisted in starting the Coin Eagle, where he worked until the spring of 1884.

From there he went to Clarinda, Ia., and devoted his attention to the Clarinda Journal until the Spring of 1888 when he entered the Herald job office at Clarinda and conducted it until 1898.

In the fall of that year he went to Clearmont and bought a half interest in the News. On March 1, 1901, he bought his partner's interest and has since conducted the paper.

Mr. Skeed had been married three times. He first married Eliza B. Avery in 1873, who died March, 1879. In September the following year he married Florence Lanning whose death occurred in April, 1895. Mr. Skeed was married to Rebecca Tucker, who survives. He leaves two children, Claude Skeed, a farmer near Clearmont, and Mrs. John Tollinger of Greentop, Mo.

Mr. Skeed was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, having joined that denomination when but 14 years of age. He belonged to the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, the Encampment and the Modern Woodmen of America. He has served as chairman of the town board of Clearmont, mayor of the town and as township trustee.

Five Aged Women Rescued From Fire

Widely Known Athlete Aids Fireman When Three-Story Building Burns.

St. Louis, Feb. 8.—Five aged women were rescued from fire that broke out in a three-story building here this afternoon from an explosion of unknown cause.

Harry J. Ratican, nationally known athlete, who happened to be passing the building, turned in the fire alarm and aided firemen in rescuing the woman.

Two men were arrested and later released on bond after charred gasoline cans were found in the rear of a grocery store on the ground floor of the building.

Committee on County Agent Meets Friday

Plan for Continuance of Agricultural Extension Service to Be Worked Out.

The committee appointed by the county court yesterday to submit to it some plan under which an agricultural extension agent be sponsored in the county, will meet at the courthouse Friday morning.

The three men appointed by the court were Joe Holliday, of Barnard, president of the Missouri Farmers Association; Frank Miller of Hopkins, president of the Farmers' Union; and Ernest Wray, president of the Farm Bureau.

These men will appoint two others, not affiliated with any farm organization, as members of the committee.

After the committee has formulated its plan it will meet with the county court, in all probability next week.

BOARD NEEDS MORE MONEY

WELFARE FUNDS GONE, COLD WAVE ON WAY.

WORST TIME OF YEAR

Little Work for Those Who Seek It.—Demand Is for Food and Fuel, Chairman Says.

With a cold wave and sub-zero temperatures forecast for tonight, the Maryville Welfare Board today issued another appeal for funds.

This is the time of year when there are most calls for help, it was said by Hal T. Hooker, chairman of the board. There is little demand for farm labor just now, and a number of men are out of work and their families in need. The recent ice harvest gave employment to several of these men, Mr. Hooker said, but this has been over for some time.

Calls upon the Welfare Board practically all are for food and fuel, the chairman stated. There are few calls for clothing, and the first overcoat was given last night.

The board held one tag day last fall and planned another, but it was not held because of unfavorable weather. Its appeal today follows:

"Through the kindness of the Democrat-Forum the Welfare Board again wishes to call attention its needs. It has always been our policy not to work a hardship on those that make our work possible but we find that the condition is such among the poor that help must come to them in the way of fuel and food or the suffering of some will be intense.

"The board has recently found it necessary to borrow $100 and on account of lack of funds a number that are worthy have been turned from our door. Any funds that may be given, no matter how small will be appreciated.

"The young peoples' Epworth League of the M. E. Church, South, are lending a helping hand to the cause. At the entertainment at the Missouri Theater given by the American Legion they will sell home made candy, the proceeds of which will be given to the Welfare Board. Buy candy, whether you eat it or not; it is for a worthy cause. Any advance orders may be phoned in. The board hopes that other organizations of our city may see fit to take up the work in some way which will help to reimburse our depleted treasury.

"Maryville Welfare Board."

The Walfare Board was in hopes no incidents would occur that transpired at Chillicothe. A one-legged man and a fellow minus legs, stationed themselves on a street corner and begged enough funds to become intoxicated with Sterno "canned heat."

They plead that the money be given for local charity work.

Skidmore Girl Breaks Arm in Skating Fall

Lavena Kabel, 11-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clem Kabel of Skidmore, broke her left arm during the noon hour today, when she fell while roller skating. The break is between the wrist and the elbow, and it is the second time the arm has been broken. The little girl fell in front of the McGinness home in Skidmore.

BATTERY ASKS AID OF PUBLIC

CUT IN NATIONAL GUARD APPROPRIATION IS FEARED.

TWO UNITS IN COUNTY

The appropriations committee of the House at Jefferson City next week will consider the budget for the Missouri National Guard for the biennial period, and it should be of much interest to Nodaway County, Captain E. V. Condon of Battery C said today.

There are two units of the National Guard in Nodaway County, the service battery at Burlington Junction and Battery C here. Action taken by the appropriation committee will vitally affect these two units, especially since the budget commission has set a limit of $150,000 for the Missouri National Guard, Captain Condon said. The National guard of the state has found that its needs for the next two years would be $380,000.

If the appropriations are slashed as the budget commission has suggested, it will mean the cutting down of the national guard forces in the state 40 per cent, and the two Nodaway County batteries would be affected as to personnel, Captain Condon said.

He said that the stationing of a national guard unit in Maryville has paid big dividends, with payrolls being distributed quarterly, and the bringing here of thousands of dollars worth of regular army equipment.

Cutting of the appropriations just now would discourage the boys, who are anticipating motorization of the battery here and at Burlington Junction. Captain Condon has suggested that the county's representative and senator, as well as the appropriation committee, be requested by Nodaway citizens to favor an appropriation that would not mean the reduction of the national guard ranks.

The following editorial is taken from the Kansas City Star:

"Support The National Guard."

The state may well be disturbed by the action of the budget commission in cutting down the biennial appropriation for the National Guard from $250,000,00 to $150,000,00. If the legislature follows this recommendation it will put itself in the position of trifling with the defensive requirements of the state and Missouri's obligation to the Federal Government. The nation has equipped the Missouri Guard with military properties valued at 5 million dollars, and demands that this equipment be properly cared for by the state. Even with the appropriation of the last two years it has been impossible to comply fully with this obligation because of insufficient appropriation.

The Missouri National Guard has made its own budget for the period of 1927-1928, and finds it needs to be $380,000,00. To reduce this to $150,000,00, would mean a disbandment of the guard, possibly by more than 50 per cent.

Missouri already is far behind the group of states with which it properly should be compared in its provisions for state military reserves. In the last biennial period it spent only an average of $54.63 per man for its force of 4,576 men. In the same period Illinois spent $281 per man; Iowa, $124; Minnesota, $110; Kansas, $94; Nebraska, $83; and Oklahoma, $75. If the budget commission is followed Missouri will either have to cut its expenditure per man to $32.77 or reduce the National Guard 40 per cent to keep its expenditure per man even on the low plane of the last two years.

Do the people of Missouri expect or desire such treatment of their state defense force? It is not merely a matter of the necessity of the guard to the state; Missouri's quota of reserves is a part of the national defense establishment. With the regular army trimmed to the minimum, the reserves play a relatively larger part of national defense.

Missouri is admonished not only by its own obligation, but by the example of neighboring states to do its part.

PRISON PROBE MEETS DELAY

RESOLUTION IN SENATE GOES OVER UNTIL TOMORROW.

MAY BE BROADENED

Democratic Leader Introduces Amendment and Republicans Ask for More Time.

Jefferson City, Feb. 8.—The senate today delayed action on the joint resolution passed by the house, providing for a complete investigation of the state penitentiary administration.

Senator N. T. Cave, president protem of the senate, called up the resolution and submitted an amendment to broaden the power of the investigating committee.

On the request of Senator Richard Ralph, Republican, minority floor leader, consideration of both amendment and resolution was postponed until tomorrow morning.

Ralph explained that he wished a delay to take up with the attorney-general the legality of certain aspects of the proposed investigation. He announced his intention of introducing another resolution.

Cave's resolution would allow the investigating committee to call witnesses and force them to testify and would make examination of penitentiary accounts by experts subject to the discretion of the committee. It further provides that the committee might continue its investigation after the close of the present session of the legislature, members receiving $5 a day for their services and the state paying incidental expenses.

Ralph objected that this would cost as much as $20,000 but Cave replied that a similar investigation in 1915 had cost the state only $7,000.

Hawes Aims Bill at Gifts From Aliens

Washington, Feb. 8.—Two bills to prevent public officials or political candidates for federal office from receiving gratuities from aliens or foreign powers were introduced in Senate today by Senator Hawes, Democrat, Missouri.

PARLIAMENT OPENS TODAY

SPLENDOR MARKS BEGINNING OF NEW SESSION.

ROYALTY ON THRONE

King George, Clad in Robes of State, Gives Speech Outlining Government's Policy.

London, Feb. 8.—"The best staged show of the year."

This chance remark whispered by one spectator into the ear of his neighbor covers in a sentence the impression of theatrical splendor of the brilliant and picturesque ceremony with which the new session of Parliament was opened in the House of Lords today.

Added to the fact that the staging and setting was perfect was one feature which put it out of class of all ordinary "shows:" All the participants were real."

King George "in person," was on his throne clad in gorgeous robes of state. Beside him sat Queen Mary, glittering with jewels, while near at hand was the Prince of Wales in full royal regalia. Facing the royal family were the banked ranks of peers robed in scarlet and ermine; peeresses in jewels and furs, officers in brilliant uniforms, monocled diplomats with glittering decorations across their chests, all the members of the House of Commons and a host of lesser lights whom industrious wire-pulling had secured admission.

King Outlines Policies.

The actual official ceremony of the opening of Parliament was itself relatively brief and consisted chiefly of King George's speech fro mthe throne in which he indirectly outlined the main points of the government's program for the session, mentioning particularly the new Poor Law Reform Bill and the Reform of the Trade Union Bill, oth of which the government hopes to pass this session.

With the termination of the picturesque pageant both houses expected to buckle down immediately to serious business. The House of Commons was scheduled for an immediate re-assembly to listen again to a reading of the King's throne speech and to launch into a discussion of its recommendations. Some hot and heavy fighting, it was predicted, lay ahead of the Poor Law Reform bill and especially the reform of the Trade Union Bill before their passage can be assumed. Objection to the Trade Union Bill, it is said, is going to come from two quarters: from the ranks of the Labor Party Parliamentarians who think the reforms proposed too drastic and reactionary, and from the ultra-Conservatives who are expected to fight it on the grounds that it hasn't "teeth" enough.

The Poor Law Reform Bill, on which a prolonged fight is also anticipated, aims at the centralizing of the control of the poor relief expenditures. It aims at making the relief of the poor more of a national problem instead of a local problem such as it now is. Under the revised bill it is hoped that injustices of poor relief taxation which at present fall with great heaviness in districts where there is excessive unemployment and only lightly in districts where work happens to be plentiful, will be corrected by national poor relief legislation.

Debate to Follow.

It is probable that the debate in the House of Commons on the throne speech will last two or three days.

There is also of course before the House at this session the question of next year's budget which last year exceeded 801,000,000 pounds sterling, and which for the coming year, it is anticipated due to the general strike and prolonged coal stoppage, will exceed last year's figure. Estimates for the new budget will be brought in and discussed early in the session and by the second week in April the public will have a fairly clear idea of how deeply the new budget is going to sink into the tax-payer's pocket-books. From then on until adjournment in July there will be practically nothing before Commons except the question of the budget and the Trade Union and Poor Law reform bills.

There is every promise it is said, of there being interesting developments in British domestic politics during the present session but it opens with a far more auspicious outlook for Britain's industrial prosperity than the previous session which opened facing the prospect of a bitter struggle in the coal fields and the further possibility of a general strike. Both, it turned out, materialized and Britain staggered under the worst blow since the Great War. No such prospect of industrial strike faces Commons at its present session, and there are on the other hand evidences on many sides that Britain is facing once more an era of industrial prosperity.

U. S. Part in League Conference Approved

Washington, Feb. 8.—Participation by the United States in the League of Nations economic conference in May at Geneva, Switzerland was approved today by the House foreign affairs committee.

MONKEY BILL DEBATE NEXT

MISSOURI HOUSE CLEARS DECKS FOR ATTACK ON EVOLUTION.

WON'T BROADCAST IT

Although Earnestly Backed By Its Authors, Legislators Expect Much Fun From Measure.

Jefferson City, Feb. 8.—The decks were cleared in the house of representatives here this afternoon for the long awaited debate on the anti-evolution bill, introduced early in the session.

Principal proponents of the measure are its authors themselves, Representatives C. C. Jackson, Oregon county, and Sam McDaniel, McDonald county, both southern Missouri farmers. Several others will speak in support of their bill.

Although there is considerable serious opposition to the bill, as well as undoubted sincerity on the part of its supporters, the "monkey debate" was anticipated with much the same jovial expectancy as a circus.

A resolution late yesterday to broadcast the evolution debate was defeated, backers and opponents of the bill alike objecting to the proposal.

Highway Building Proposed.

Jefferson City, Feb. 8.—A bill was introduced today in the house of representatives providing for construction of a $500,000 office building to house the state highway department. Funds would be taken from the highway fund. The site proposed is at the northeast corner of the capitol grounds.

Three Questions Of Importance.

Jefferson City, Mo., Feb. 8.—With issues rapidly becoming defined and preliminary business dispatched, the Missouri legislature settled down to the most important week of the present session.

Three questions that have aroused more interest throughout the state than any brought up by the mass of bills so far introduced, are scheduled for consideration in one or both houses. They are the penitentiary investigation, evolution bill, and state budget system.

Proposals to investigate penitentiary affairs, whispered for some time, were forced into the open last week by adoption in the House of a joint and concurrent resolution for legislative inquiry.

The resolution will be considered in the senate this week and the outcome is doubtful. Although sentiment was believed strong for such an investigation earlier in the session, observers are now of the opinion it has all but died out in the upper body.

The Senate is Democratic in majority, however, and criticism of penal institution management was frequently mentioned by Democratic candidates in the last election. The resolution would therefore seem to have at least as good a chance in the Senate as in the House.

Baker Also Asks Audit.

Governor Sam Baker has requested a complete audit of prison books by the state auditor but has specified that it shall interfer in no way with whatever steps the legislature decides to take. His move followed a letter from the secretary of the prison board to its members charging, in substance, inefficient management.

Consideration of the evolution bill in the House where it was introduced was an order of business for 2 p. m. today and was expected to provoke oratorical efforts unprecedent in the present session. Observers are predicting that the bill will be defeated.

It was introduced early in the session and provides, as amended and favorably report from education committee, that no teacher in any public school supported wholely or in part by pub-

POLL FAVORS M'NARY BILL

44 SENATORS FOR, 35 AGAINST, 11 DOUBTFUL, 5 ABSENT.

REED, HAWES OPPOSED

Curtis-Crisp Measure May Be Used In Attempt To Defeat Price Stabilization Feature.

Washington, Feb. 8.—The Senate will vote at 4 p. m. Friday on the McNary-Haugen price stabilization bill.

A unanimous agreement, setting the time for a final vote, was officially entered into by the Senate today.

Washington, Feb. 8.—A poll of the Senate by the United Press today showed the line-up on the McNary-Haugen farm price stabilization bill to be:

For, 44. Against, 35. Doubtful, 11. Absent, 5.

This indicated clearly that the bill would pass if brought to a final ballot, immediately. There may be some subsequent switches if debate extends several days and probably most of the eleven doubtful will vote ultimately against the measure. However, the margin manifested in the poll should be sufficient to insure ultimate passage of the measure.

Senator Hawes, Democrat, Missouri, is listed among the thirty-five opponents of the bill.

Among the absent five, believed to be against the bill, is Reed, Democrat, Missouri.

A vote is expected either late today or tomorrow. Opponents of the bill intend to use the Curtis-Crisp bill to buffet the McNarry bill and will force a vote upon it first as a substitute. Much of the support for the McNary bill would go to the Curtis bill and if all opponents of the McNary bill fell in behind the Curtis bill it could be adopted.

Farm bloc leaders, however, profess to have assurances from many of their opponents that they will vote against both bills and refuse to be parties to any legislative subterfuge which might kill all farm relief legislation for this session.

Representative Dickinson, Republican, Iowa, leader of the House farm bloc announced the McNary-Haugen bill would be considered Wednesday in the House. He predicted passage by a margin of forty votes, due to the recent acquisition of representatives from tobacco states who consented to vote for the measure of tobacco was included as a basic product under the equalization fee plan.

Coolidge Waits to Confer With Wood

Consideration of a Plebscite for Philippine Independence Is Delayed.

Washington, Feb. 8.—President Coolidge is withholding consideration of a plebiscite for Philippine independence until he can confer with Governor General Wood, his spokesman said today.

The President expected to have his conference long ago but General Wood's physical condition kept him from leaving the Philippines. If General Wood's illness continues, the spokesman said, Mr. Coolidge will make his decision without the conference.

British Troops Are Held at Hong Kong

Change Of Policy Toward China Is Indicated.—In Easy Steaming Distance, However.

Shanghai, Feb. 8.—The first detachment of British troops to arrive in the Far East because of the current trouble in China was being held at Hong Kong today. This was interpreted here to mean that Britain had changed her policy and would not concentrate troops to Shanghai.

It was presumed that Britain now planned to keep reinforcements at Hong Kong within easy steaming distance of Shanghai for use in the event foreign lives or property here were endangered.

Weather

Much colder tonight; Wednesday probably fair.

AMERICANS IN CHINA.

Representative Wainwright, of New York, has obtained from the State Department, a record of Americans in China—where they are located and their business. The total number including children, is 12,000, one-half of whom are Missionaries scattered in many places. About 2500 are in business, 580 in professional work; 365 in the Chinese service; 325 in the Chinese service; and 400 in occupations not specified. American citizens of the Chinese race number 1200 mostly at Hong Kong and Canton.

During the past 20 years the American population has increased approximately threefold.

The American population in China is exceeded by the Japanese, Russian and British.

American commercial investments in China, excluding mission schools and hospitals, is conservatively estimated at $69,300,000. This includes government bonds and securities, railway and industrial enterprises, long term government credits, and lands, buildings and equipment.

BUSINESS AND TRANSPORTATION.

The business of the country never fails to respond to its transportation methods. It is only as fast as its transportation and the section that does not readjust itself to the new conditions as they develop will eventually drop into the discard.

The automobile has brought a revolution in many lines. It is making better roads, not only desirable, but necessary. It is making through carriers of the railroads almost exclusively and it has brought about what is known as the "hand to mouth" system of buying, the fine steel industry, the extension of the telephone, the chain store and other big changes.

According to a writer in a recent issue of "System—the Magazine of Business" the thought of a nation is only as fast as its transport. The next great development lies in the airplane. It has mared time for many years but it is going to burst upon us one of these days in the near future as a real, new problem in transportation an din the commercial life of the nation.

One direct result of rapid transportation ahs been to release a great amount of money that would otherwise be tied up in transportation. It is likely that the generation now coming on will witness as great an upset in business as has the present one.

THE READING SLEUTH.

Franklin P. Adams, writing his "Diary of Our Own Samuel Pepys" the other day, told of his search for a certain quotation which he thought came from Stevenson. He concludes:

"I could not find it, but read all of Stevenson's poems in the effort to find it, and that was highly pleasurable and I found again that a great part of the information I have was acquired by looking up something and finding something else on the way; and much of my reading done that way, too."

That is one of the rewards for looking up unfamiliar words in the dictionary, tracing allusions to their source, verifying a bit of history or geography or science run across in casual reading. Sometimes the hasty reader refuses to look up the thing he doesn't know because he imagines it takes too much time or may distract him from the book in hand. Thereby he loses a lot of real pleasure and shuts the door of new knowledge of interest and value.

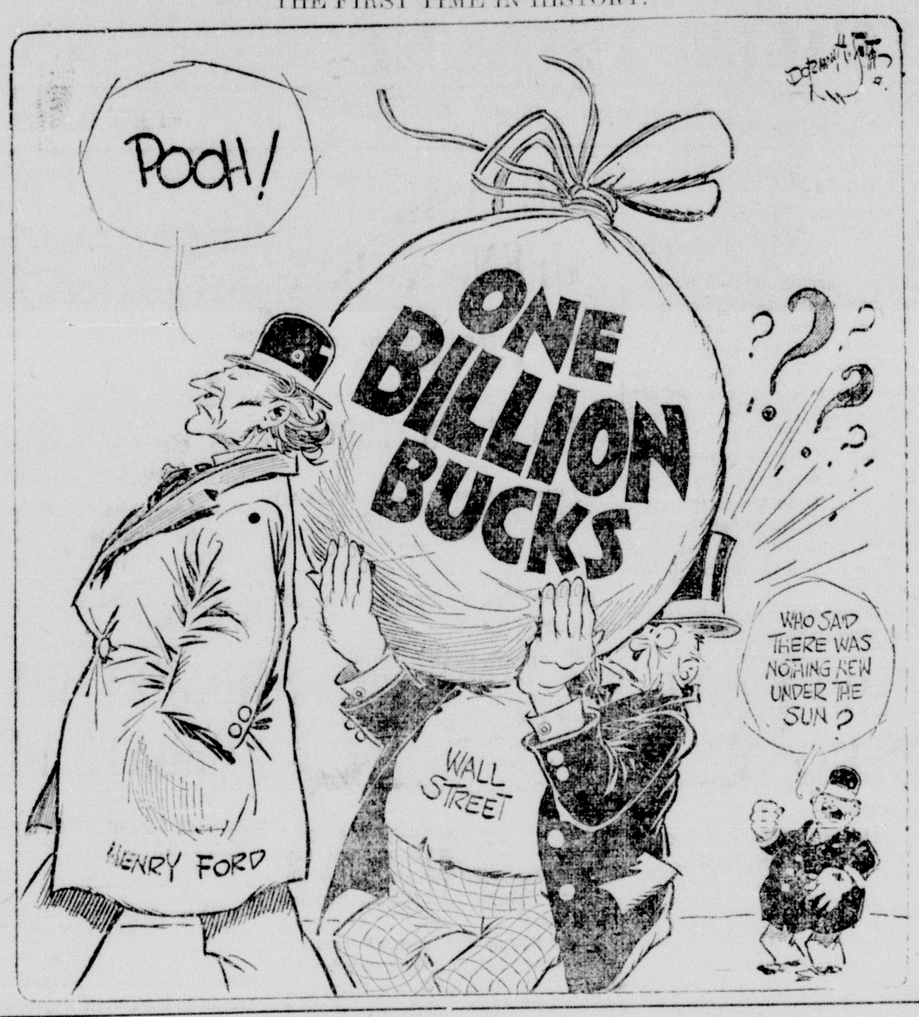
THE FIRST TIME IN HISTORY.



WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer.

Washington—This happened in ancient Rome:

A group of New York plutocrats came down and threw a festive little party.

A delegation of senators was present—Roman senators, you understand, because this was in Rome.

The keenest feature of the party was the favors. At every plate was found a lovely little silver flask.

And each of these cute little favors was filled with excellent Scotch whisky.

And after the banquet was over, somebody counted up and found that only three senators had left their favors on the table.

And there was a great deal of talk, you may be sure. Not because so many senators had made way with their favors, contents and all, but because it was considered mighty poor taste on any gentleman's part to leave his favor on the table instead of taking it.

Ah, what a terrible, wicked, scandalous old place was ancient Rome! For all this, you must remember, happened in Rome.

* * *

No wonder everybody likes the Honorable Nicholas Longworth, speaker of the House of Representatives.

His manly beauty is only exceeded by his democratic informality.

While some of the noble Georgian champions of the cotton farmer were fervently debating agricultural relief, Speaker Nick, out of the speaker's chair possibly so as to hear the better—though heaven knows those crack orators from Georgia can be heard for remarkable distances — was sitting down on the aisle among the common run of congressmen.

Suddenly two rather large and quite similar brown objects appeared atop the back of the seat in front of Speaker Nick. It was soon seen that they were Speaker Nick's feet. And Speaker Nick was almost out of sight, though he could just peer over the toes of his shoes toward the rostrum.

It was the most brazen exhibition of brown spats ever seen in the House. But Congresswomen Florence Kahn and Edith Rogers, across the aisle, didn't even mind a bit, even though they didn't emulate Speaker Nick. It's hard enough for anyone to sit through a session of the House under any circumstances without having to sit up like a ramrod.

Generals in Chinese War Use Slogans; Know Advertising Pays

Editor's Note—This is the fourth of a series of articles by Randall Gould describing conditions in China.

By RANDALL GOULD
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Peking, Feb. 8—Slogans have come in fashion even in supposedly backward China, and every Chinese leader is busily trying to "sell himself" by the most approved advertising methods.

In such a keenly competitive field, it is not surprising that cruel remarks are frequently to be heard concerning the quality of the goods back of the various sounding labels.

Wu Pei-fu, strong backer of the last official president of this now headless republic, was a military man first, last and all the time in spite of his thorough classical education, and his slogan was "Forcible Unification." He preached the gospel of pulling the country together whether it relished the experience or not, and he ruined a good many hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of railways in charging to and fro in knightly fashion. His slogan still rings out in somewhat diminished tones from time to time, but Wu himself is definitely eclipsed.

Chang Is "Anti-Red".

Chang Tso-lin, known as "the Warlord of Mukden," for a long time contented himself with this title as expression of his ideals. He has been a feudal warlord. Now, however, he finds himself called on to enter the propaganda battle and he is acquitting himself nobly.

"Smash the Reds" might be taken as the keynote of the Chang Tso-lin sales talk. Like many other good folk in the world, Chang's idea of a Red is a man on the other side. Chang knows what the Russians are, because he is always in trouble with them over the Chinese Eastern Railway issue in the northern part of his domains. He also knows that Canton has Russian advisors; this, coupled with the fact that the Cantonese are against him, is quite enough. Fine points of communism, socialism, Bolshevism, Chinese Nationalism, are all wasted on Chang, and quite rightly so from his viewpoint because he is out to win and, like any other adviser, he wants his goods to sell better than the other chap's.

Chang's latest evidence of his growing appreciation of the value of a good label is in his christening of the united Northern army as the "Ankwochun," or Pacification-of-the-Country-Army, a title patently patterned after Feng Yu-hsiang's catchy "Kuominchun" or People's Army.

The Christian General.

When Feng Yu-hsiang became known as "the Christian General" he achieved the best stroke of publicity of his career. That title brought a rather obscure man clear out into the limelight before his time, and when Feng's sensational coup was staged by which he turned against his erstwhile chief Wu Pei-fu and captured Peking behind Wu's back, he had already, largely through missionary aid, established a world reputation.

Now, curiously enough, Feng appears definitely to have turned against the missionaries who were formerly his friends. Apparently he retains his own special brand of Christianity but he says that it requires no Russian aid to show him that the Christian Church is on the side of capitalism, while he desires to throw in his lot with the Cantonese on the side of Chinese equality, nationalism and freedom from the foreign yoke.

Feng always has been a great user of slogans, which he paints on buildings and walls wherever he goes. His men usually display arm-bands bearing some pungent promise, lettered in Chinese hieroglyphics, to care for the common people or forfeit their lives. Feng has a good reputation for living up to his slogans to the best of his ability, moreover.

Cantonese Most Clever.

It is the Cantonese who best understand the value of catchwords, slogans, sales talk and all the rest of the publicity bag of tricks. "Down with imperialism"—"Abolish unequal treaties"—"Give back the foreign concession"—these and other phrases familiar to the world are all traceable to the Cantonese and to those allied with them.

Eugene Chen, acting Foreign Minister of the Nationalist Government, knows almost no Chinese at all because he was born in Jamaica, but he has a superb command of cutting and violent English. There is no English editor in the Orient who can compare with him in this respect, although H. G. W. Woodhead of Tientsin, editor of the Peking and Tientsin Times, ranks very close and the two are old and not wholly unfriendly enemies of the pen. Chen's notes as Foreign Minister always contain a great deal of purely propagandistic matter, and the "sales policy" of the Nationalists is consistently displayed through such means as their introduction of "propaganda corps" among newly-conquared armies and their maintenance of a very able publicity bureau in Canton, to say nothing of the ones abroad.

Modern methods have brought airplanes, trench mortars and machine-guns into Chinese warfare; modern methods have likewise brought the advertising man, though he goes by different titles or by no title at all. The Chinese of today who seeks the world's ear is by no means as artless as he is popularly thought. He knows that certain words such as "Bolshevik", "nationalism", "republic", and so on have fairly definite meanings abroad and he employs them in his foreign propaganda without regard to how closely they really fit the Chinese situation. It is well to bear this fact in mind in surveying the present China scene.

Red Cross Notes

Since May, 1925, when the French Red Cross organized a blinded soldiers' bureau, whose expenses are borne by an American committee, the work has been extending to embrace a very large proportion of the 3,000 French soldiers who were blinded during the World War. William Nelson Campbell, an American philanthropist, has devoted large sums of money to the rehabilitation of this class of unfortunate men in many countries, and the French Red Cross acts for him in the distribution of Braille books to them. Through 216 local committees of the society, more than 1,000 visits have been paid and Braille books distributed. Red Cross workers give their service as instructors in reading Braille that a large number of the blinded men may profit by the supply of reading material. The American Braille Press has presented to the blinded soldiers' bureau a supply of silver watches expressly designed for the use of the blind. The bureau is awarding these to the best Braille scholars. So useful has the bureau become that, although maintained primarily for the benefit of ex-soldiers, it is probable that its activities may be extended to civilians.

The American Red Cross during the last fiscal year gave instruction to 57,370 women and girls in its home hygiene and care of the sick classes.

In these classes are taught the principles of personal hygiene and health habits essential to the physical and mental vigor of every individual. Students learn how to plan a healthful home, perfect in cleanliness, in sanitation, ventilation, and lighting as well as in furnishing and care. They are taught how to handle, bathe, dress and feed babies and small children, safeguarding their health throughout the growing period. They learn how to make a patient comfortable, give a bed bath, change the linen of an occupied bed, prevent the spread of disease and deal with common ailments and emergencies.

In addition to this they are taught the principles of community welfare, which insure to every citizen through cooperative effort, the protection of life and health.

The free port of Danzig has its own Red Cross, founded in June, 1922. It has a sanitary brigade, first aid and disinfecting stations, trains volunteer workers in all branches, and promotes popular health instruction. Its Junior Red Cross is active in the relief of distress among children.

Railroads Acquiring Motor Bus Systems

Big Companies Now See in Them An Asset Rather Than a Threat of Bankruptcy.

New York, Feb. 8.—Motor bus lines, menace of railroad and trolley systems for the past decade, now are developing faster than ever but as an asset to the older transportation system rather than as a bankruptcy threat, according to Earl Chapin May, who presents the results of a nation-wide survey of bus line growth in the current issue of Elks magazine.

The motor bus, because it can make short runs more frequently and with more stops at a fraction of the cost of operating a railway local train, has, he said cut into railroad business until railroad building is virtually at a standstill and the head of a large eastern road declares "there are 30,000 miles of railroad that should be abandoned."

But the railroads are buying and establishing bus lines from coast to coast to handle their short haul business and feed their trunk lines with more traffic than before, because the bus shows a profit where a rail branch would be a decided liability, he said.

Sunday Movies Issue in Moberly Election

Present Mayor Is Attacked by Former Incumbent for Veto of Council's Ordinance.

Moberly, Mo., Feb. 8.—Sunday "movies" is one of the principal issues in Moberly's mayoralty primary campaign which closes with the election here today.

Rolla R. Rothwell, a former mayor, is a candidate for election. Mr. Rothwell has stated he would be in favor of Sunday shows and would not veto any ordinance that would permit them. Mayor J. M. Jeffries, candidate for re-election recently vetoed an ordinance by the council permitting shows on Sunday. In the meantime the theaters have been open Sundays. Each Monday following the manager has been arrested and fined in city court. Appeals are now pending in such cases.

Auto License Sales Slump; Bad Weather

Total Issued Here Falls Below Record of 1926 for First Time.—751 Motorists Get Plates.

Bad roads and unfavorable weather brought a slump in the number of state automobile licenses issued Saturday and yesterday at the Chamber of Commerce, and as a result the 1927 total now is 99 below the number of plates issued in the corresponding period last year.

The total sales for the five days last week were 665, and Monday's sales brought it to 752. The first six days after the licenses went on sale in 1925 saw 851 issued.

Eighty-seven sets of plates were given out yesterday, which was six more than Saturday.

School Theft Case Tried Before Jury

Ray Davis, Farmers Near Pickering, Charged With Larceny.—Probate Decision In Fisher Case Upheld.

A jury in circuit court this afternoon was hearing petit larceny charges filed against Ray Davis.

Davis, a farmer who lives in the Pickering neighborhood, but who recently moved from Worth County, is charged with stealing five green window shades, a water bucket, oil can and one clock. The property is alleged to have been taken from the Oak Grove school near Gaynor.

The defendant had as counsel W. G. Sawyers and Virgil Rathbun. It was the first time in Mr. Rathbun's career as an attorney that he had challenged a jury in the Nodaway County circuit court.

The jury chosen in the case.

J. D. England, Roy Davis, V. E. Williams, Glen Mahafey, Henry Westfall, M. J. Dougan, J. Ed Costello, Dute Keever, C. V. Ford, Harlan Carter, Tom Coyle and Fred Wallace.

J. W. McKnight, Albany attorney, sitting in the appeal from the probate court of Amos T. Fisher, curator, against Cecil Hayes, who was ward of the curator, upheld in part the decision of Judge Jesse F. Robertson.

He found the curator grossly negligent in handling the affairs of his ward, and charged him $601.55 at 6 per cent interest since the November, 1916, settlement, disallowed credit for curator and attorney fees and $150 for improvements expended on improvements on a house; and allowed credit of $363.32 as date of June 5, 1926.

Mr. McKnight ordered immediate foreclosure of security by the curator and allowed his credit for amount received, less costs of foreclosure and fees of probate court.

Counsel for Fisher filed motion for arrest of judgment and for a new trial. The new hearing will probably be held some time next week.

GARDEN TIME DRAWS NEAR

STYLES CHANGE EVEN IN VEGETABLE CULTURE.

GROWN IN ROWS NOW

Old Plot System Neither So Convenient Nor Economical.—Should Be Planned.

Old-time gardeners arranged their vegetable plots in beds.

The modern gardner has different ideas. "The old system is not the best either as a matter of economy of space or convenience," he says. "We now make the work of cultivation light by wheel hoes and improved hand tools. The crops should run in straight rows across the garden from north to south, if the lay of the land permits, for more even distribution of sun."

Or, perhaps, he has entirely different idea. But the chances are that his method of gardening will differ from the methods of last generation. It is probable, also, that he has already either planted the first lettuce seeds or is seriously wondering if next week will be too early.

Allow Space for Hoeing.

The National Garden Bureau Service makes the following suggestion concerning garden-making:

The spacing apart of the rows should be made to suit the method of cultivation. Plain hoeing does not require as wide a space as a two wheel hoe.

The plan should show plainly the companion and succession crops. A companion crop is one that grows with another crop at least part of the season. A succession crop is one that follows after the ground has been cleared of an earlier planting. Crops should be arranged with the idea in mind as to the length of their growing season the short season crops together. These include radishes, spinach, lettuce, early peas and young onions. Their space will be cleared off by July and other crops can take their places.

Long Season Crops.

The long season crops are tomatoes, egg plants, peppers, sweet corn, lima beans, and parsnips, oyster plant, and carrots for large roots. Early cabbage is a good companion for lettuce, because the lettuce is out of the way before the cabbage is large enough to interfere. The cabbage plants may be set in the lettuce rows. Corn is used frequently for a companion crop, squash or cucumbers being planted in the hills to use the stalks for support.

Mark on the plan what crops are to follow and which are to be companions. Tomatoes may be set in the rows of peas. Lettuce, spinach and radishes may well give way to string beans.

In general, do not follow a root crop with a root crop nor a legume with a legume, that is to say, early peas by beans or vice versa. This companion and follow planning is the secret of getting the most out of the small vegetable garden.

This and That

The train had finally emerged from the blackness of a long tunnel. The conductor noticed a young couple, both of whom were apparently quite flustered, and the young woman was nervously rearranging her disheveled hair.

Thinking to put them at their ease, the conductor remarked pleasantly:

"Did you know that the tunnel we just came through cost $12,000,000?"

"Did it?" inquired the girl. Then she added, after a pause, "Well, it was worth it."

Charley Jensen, local fur dealer has found a new way to catch the large variety of house rats. He catches them in a gunny sack.

The other day while he was transferring some of his mink from one cage to another, one escaped. It was caught later in a trap. The same thing happened yesterday. It was decided at the fur dealer's place of business to move some of the boxes around and then have another person hold a sack, in case the mink might jump out from its hiding place.

Before Charley gave up the idea three large rats had been caught. The mink was not caught until this morning, and then in a trap.

How Meanings Change.

The word "Villain" first meant a villager.

"Rivals" first meant neighbors who lived on the banks of a river.

"Brat," now a vulgar word, was once used in sacred verse—"Oh, Abraham's brats; Oh, broode of blessed seede."

"Knave" used to mean merely a young man.

"Pagan and heathen" come from words that signify a country man, a farmer.

An "idiot" started out as a term for a private person, one not mixing in public affairs.

"Simpleton" was originally applied to a person of simple straight-forward ways.

She Got Hers.

South Florida is spreading this joke around: Woman got on a street car in Tampa and finding she had no change, handed the conductor a $10 bill. "Sorry," she said, "but I have no nickel." The conductor switched his waistline cash register around with easy reach and replied: "That's all right, lady, you'll have 199 of them in a minute.—Florida Times-Union.

Boy Puts Powder in Air Rifle; Is Burned

Scout Training of Thomas Collins, Formerly of Maryville, Comes in Handy in Emergency.

Thomas Collins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Collins, was burned at the side of the face Fonday afternoon by an explosion of gun powder. The boy had been shooting his air rifle, a beebee becoming lodged in the barrel. A sure way, to him, to dislodge the shot was to blow it out with gun powder.

He touched off the powder, the result being that he was burned about the face. The bill of his cap luckily shielded his eyes. The force of the explosion threw him from the back porch out against the garage.

The mother was away from home at the time, Thomas patiently awaiting her return. She hurried him to the doctor where the burns were treated. Through his scouting knowledge Thomas had learned that grease was good for burns and had applied vaseline to his face. It is to this knowledge that the doctor attributes the burns to have been no worse.—Clarinda, Ia., Herald.

Do You Know This About OSTEOPATHY?

Luther Burbank Said:

"I have been treated by allopaths, naturopaths, hydropaths and osteopaths in my time, and I have found that the best man is the one who best aids Nature to a re-adjustment of your body—that it is Nature herself who does the heavy work."

Luther Burbank was one of the closest students of Nature that ever lived. He knew the immutable laws of Nature and the body's inherent tendency to normal. He knew that the best physician was the one who co-operated with Nature.

Osteopathy is founded on the laws of Nature. The Osteopathic Physician at all times aids Nature in her fight against disease by restoring the normal structure of the body. Normal structure means normal function. Disease cannot exist in a body that is functioning normally.

"If you haven't tried Osteopathy you haven't given yourself a fair trial at Health."

What Jerry Says

Look here! Who was it I heard snore?
Well, don't you do it any more,
For it's a mighty solemn time,
When lines won't step and words won't rhyme.
I think it is a dreadful sin
For you to wear that silly grin,
When perspiration stands out now
In great big drops upon my brow.
When little words like "worse" and "fuss"
Won't rhyme at all, it makes me cuss;
And then some more like "sass" and "jazz,"
You see what trouble Jerry has?
Then to have you readers snore,
Right in my face, it makes me sore;
I don't like that a little bit,
I want—Boo-hoo—you folks to quit.

EVOLUTION PROVEN.

Some strange things I discover while reading the news,
But the strangest of all is this wonderful Muse.
If the same Muse leaves off where the other begins,
Then beyond preadventure that Muse must be twins;
And to think of those twins sets my head in a whirl,
One must be a boy and the other a girl.

If a man can change that much in one single night,
Then to doubt evolution is surely not right;
Should a monkey change that fast I think very soon,
He would make Isaac Newton look like a baboon.
Now since I have proven this doctrine all right,
I bid you a pleasant and peaceful good night.

BEARCATS TO OTHER COURTS

S. T. C. QUINT STARTS FIRST ROAD TRIP TOMORROW.

PLAY CAPE GIRARDEAU

Then Squad Returns By Way of Kirksville and Plays Three Games Here Next Week.

M. I. A. A. Standings.

Team	W.	L.	Pct.	Pts.	Op.
Maryville	2	0	1.000	84	45
Warrensburg	4	2	.666	185	184
Springfield	3	4	.429	201	213
Kirksville	3	4	.429	181	201
Cape Girardeau	1	3	.250	114	123

The State Teachers College Bearcats will leave Maryville tonight for Cape Girardeau, where they will play their first away-from-home conference game tomorrow night. It will open a series of Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association games for the Bearcats. The team will play at Kirksville Friday and Saturday nights, and then will hasten home for three conference tilts here next week.

The game tomorrow night is regarded as one of the crucial ones of the season for the Bearcats. In spite of the fact that Cape is now at the bottom of the conference percentage column, teams which play there do so at a hazard, for the Cape gymnasium is a cigar-box affair, and there is a question as to whether or not the Bearcats' open style of play will accommodate itself to such close quarters.

A victory tomorrow night will practically eliminate Cape Girardeau from the conference running. The Indians have won but once out of four games, and should the Bearcats trim them, the Southeast Teachers would have no little difficulty overcoming the handicap of four games lost.

Springfield, a team which has lost four games, defeated Kirksville last night at Springfield, 39 to 29. This also makes four defeats for the Kirksville team, and leaves but Maryville and Warrensburg actually in the conference running. And Springfield plays at Warrensburg Friday night while the Bearcats are tackling Kirksville.

The game at Cape Girardeau tomorrow night will be received play by play at the local courthouse. The game will come to Maryville by means of a leased wire, and will be broadcast through an electric scoreboard at the courthouse. The game will start at 8 o'clock.

Coach Lawrence will take seven or eight men to Cape Girardeau with him. He had not announced the personnel of his squad at press time this afternoon, but it is likely that if he takes eight men that they will be Captain Joy, Berst, Burks, Hedges, Ungles, Conners, Ferguson, and Crane.

* * * * * * * * * * * * *

Sports writers for various Missouri dailies are taking it pretty hard over the "humiliation" of the St. Joseph Hillyards by the Bearcats of the Northwest Missouri State Teachers College.

In other words the Bearcats and Coaches H. F. Lawrence and Paul Jones are finding the going rough to secure any recognition.

Of course, the St. Joseph papers stand behind the Hillyards and find all kinds of alibis for the Hillyard's defeats.

Then, Maryville teams have in the past found difficulty in finding recognition from Sports Editor McBride of the Kansas City Star. This might have been caused by an incident years ago when McBride officiated a game here and some person, not a Maryville resident, heaved some hen fruit at the referee after the game. But time has finally blotted McBride's memory and he has become more friendly of late.

In his column in yesterday's Star he takes cognizance that a tall lad from Pickering, who grew up with a basketball, could pivot and dribble around the agile Starbuck of the Hillyards for nine field baskets. McBride said:

"Who among you would have risked a guess that any college player would ring up nine field goals against the Hillyard guards with the alert and agile Starbuck on the job? Chances are none of you would have been so bold, yet that is just what Burks, Maryville center, did. In defeating the Hillyards, 35 to 31, "Shorty" Lawrence's Maryvillians did the trick just one point better than did the University of Kansas. Maryville, however, had the National A. A. U. champions on its own floor, while Kansas turned the Hillyards back on the St. Joseph court."

But the defeat was hard to realize and the Sunday Star said so in as many words: "Will wonders never cease. Maryville beat the Hillyards. Maybe William Jewell will beat the K. C. A. C.'s."

Further comments, from the St. Joseph Gazette, inferring that it would be impossible for Maryville to have a team on a par with any team in the Missouri Valley conference:

"The Sooners' triumph early in the season did not cause the veteran followers of the champions to worry; the Aggies' two point win was excusable; Kansas scored only a three-point victory; but Maryville—that's different."

And again: "But in the meantime are the Hillyards to go on being lambasted from pillar to post by such teams as the Maryville Bearcats? This is not meant to belittle the Teachers, but there are a host of better teams in the country which will compete in the national tournament?"

The Bearcats may not be the best that will compete in the national tourney but we guarantee there are not a "host" of better teams in the country.

It can be vouched that opponents of the Bearcats will not deny Maryville has three men on the quintet this year that have few superiors on the offense: one from Maitland, one from Pickering and the other from Conception Junction. Nor is the guarding so slouchy.

It's up to the Bearcats now to continue on their winning way and make the metropolitan scribes "eat their words."

Not Too Fat

Here is Helen Wills, said by Suzanne Lenglen to be too fat to play championship tennis. Entirely recovered from her operation for appendicitis, she has started intensive training to regain her crown as woman tennis champion of the United States.

Stage and Screen

New York, Feb. 8.—Clean drama has been given a decided boost by Maxwell Anderson's latest play "Saturday's Children," which the reorganized Actor's Theater presented at the Booth recently. The production stands out as a relief from some of the sordid tales of murder and degradation that are being offered in other theaters in the Times Square district.

Reviewers who saw this gentle domestic affair couldn't help but compare it with the virile "What Price Glory," of which he was co-author and his "White Desert."

The play deals with the trouble that confronts a young couple who struggle through the first year of marriage on a meager income, Ruth Gordon and Roger Pryor are spledid in the roles of the youthful husband and wife.

George C. Tyler's all-star revival of "Trelawney of the Wells," including some of the leading pillars of the American stage in the cast, opened last week at $5 top prices. The new Ziegfield Theater was inaugurated with "Rio Rita," a musical show, with a $25 top. Moralists may draw their own lesson.

Norma Shearer has been given the role of Katie in the film version of "Old Heidelberg" being made by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. She will be starred in the piece with Ramon Navarro. Jean Hersholt and Chester Conklin are also members of the cast.

Negotiations have been completed for the new United Artists Theater Circuit's house in Detroit. The deal involves $3,000,000. The theater will be the third in a proposed chain of 20 to be built by the recently formed syndicate headed by Joseph M. Schenck.

Assisted by some gorgeous gowns, Billie Dove is to lend her beauty and grace to "The Tender Hour," a First National picture, in which she will be featured with Ben Lyon.

Lenore Ulric will observe her first anniversary in "Lulu Belle" this week. It is the only current play, aside from "Abie's Irish Rose" that has been on Broadway for a year.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED BEFORE

By means of a plot engineered by James Mulholland and five aides, Ames, Chester, Fenne, Quantrill and Vereker, Robert Masterton is sentenced to Atlanta. While there, Vereker, who has been sentenced on another charge, reveals, while dying, the names of the plotters on Masterton's promise not to invoke the law but to take vengeance into his own hands. Masterton is in love with Cynthia Knowles, a rich and beautiful young woman. Her faith in him shattered, she marries Mulholland. On her wedding day she gets an anonymous note accusing her husband of the plot to railroad Masterton to jail. Masterton's grandfather dies and leaves him six million dollars. He is freed. Back in New York he gives Sadie Hicks, hungry and out of a job, a position as his private secretary. He meets Cynthia, refuses to allow her to blame herself for her lack of faith in him and tells her she is the only woman he will ever love. Fenne offers information to Masterton who goes to his room. Chester calling the next morning finds Fenne murdered. Quantrill, Ames and Chester begin to fear Masterton's vengeance. Fenne is declared a suicide and the conspirators plan to make an ally of Talbot, Masterton's valet. Ames has a talk with Talbot. Ames offers Talbot $5,000 for certain papers regarding Fenne which he thinks Masterton has in his possession. Ames finds himself face to face with Masterton on a houseboat. Ames mysteriously disappears and a detective questions Mulholland. Cynthia overhears the conversation and asks Mulholland to explain. Cynthia see Masterton and realizes that the only thing she cares about is his love for her. Masterton leaves town and gives Sadie $500 for personal expenses. Chester sets out to wreak vengeance on Masterton. He thinks he has him cornered but Masterton makes him a prisoner. Chester mysteriously vanishes and Masterton is reported missing. Cynthia is greatly worried but he returns safely. Sadie tells him she has been doing a little investigating on her own account. Talbot receives some surprising orders from his employer. Quantrill, seeking to escape, finds himself a passenger in an airplane of which Masterton is the pilot.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER 37

Cave-man Tactics

Cynthia stood erect before him, pale but very beautiful; his eyes traveled over her from head to foot, and rested on her face.

"You see only your own side of it. I am your husband—and you think you can put me away. You women . . . . with your bargains and your tricks of evasion, you are crooks, all of you! You'll take all and give nothing. A sex of crooks, that's what you are . . . I've been successful all my life . . . I've never been beaten, but by a woman.

"You thought you could play with me," he said thickly. "You—you beautiful devil. And I'm to lose you . . . . Cynthia!"

He made a swift step and gripped her by the wrists, pulling her to him.

"Let me go!" she panted, trying to free herself. "Let me go. . . . ."

But she found herself helpless, he had his arms about her, his hot lips seeking hers; she twisted her head aside . . . . he gripped her ferociously, overcoming all resistance.

For a moment all her senses were paralyzed. He was brutal. . . . horrible. She was aware of a monstrous eye glaring close into hers, a fierce, resolute eye. She felt herself falling, and staggered . . . . there was a blind struggle that seemed interminable. In reality it was very brief; it came to an end with unexpected suddenness.

After the first shock Cynthia became possessed of an amazing strength, a strength of which she would not have believed herself capable. Her teeth were set hard, she wrenched an arm free and got it between his chest and hers; she had no idea what she did, but she heard his jaw click, heard him gasp, and supple as a cat she twisted out of his grasp and ran back.

They faced each other for a moment, Cynthia, sick and disheveled.

He was moving towards her.

"If you touch me again," said Cynthia wildly, "I—I'll kill you!" And Mulholland laughed.

At that moment the door opened, and the butler appeared, with letters on a tray. Mulholland's arms fell to his sides.

The door had hardly closed when Cynthia had it open again; she looked back at Mulholland, and with an instinctive movement straightened her hair and the torn lace at her throat before going out onto the landing.

But since that brief interruption, Mulholland had completely changed. His face had turned dead white again, and he was shaking.

"Cynthia—I'm sorry. I didn't mean this," he said hoarsely. "Cynthia—you won't go. You won't leave me . . ."

But she was gone, Cynthia had recovered herself by far the more quickly of the two, and her voice was almost steady when she met her maid on the landing above and called to her.

"Order the car to be ready for me in ten minutes," she said.

"Yes, madam," replied the maid.

Mulholland, who had left the drawing room overheard.

"Cynthia!" he said dazedly. He went up to her room. But the door was locked.

He could hear the butler moving about, below. So Cynthia was going. It was the end. He could not stop her now . . . he did not wish to stop her. Just as well that she should go . . . .

He turned away blindly. He heard the front door bell ring again. It always seemed to be ringing, these days. He paid no attention to it. He stood by the bannisters, collecting his wits, thinking. He swayed slightly, and the look on his face was such that the young footman, who happened to pass just then, hesitated and came back to him.

"Can I do anything, sir?" he said. "I—I thought you looked ill."

Mulholland did not seem to hear. He passed his hand across his eyes. He blinked at the man.

"It is nothing. I will go and lie down," he said dizzily. "I am not to be disturbed."

Mulholland passed into his room and closed the door.

An hour later a call came for Mulholland on the telephone; it was answered by the young footman, and was so persistent and urgent a call that he thought he had better disregard orders. He tapped softly on the writing-room door.

There was no answer.

He opened the door very gently and looked in. What he saw sent him, with a very white face, in quest of the butler.

"Come up quick!" he said.

The other came promptly. His master was lying back in a deep arm-chair by the writing desk, on which stood a glass of water and half-empty bottle of tablets. Mulholland appeared to be sleeping quietly. One arm hung down over the side of the chair. A single glance at the face was enough.

"Dead!"

In less than twenty-minutes Inspector Morrisey arrived and with him a police surgeon.

"Was he in the habit of taking this stuff?" asked the Inspector, picking up the bottle.

"Not to my knowledge, sir," the footman said.

"Where is Mrs. Mulholland? Doesn't she know—?"

"She is not in, sir," said the butler, before the footman could reply. "She hasn't heard of this yet—we have only just discovered it."

He looked at the bottle. "Five grain tablets—" said the Inspector. He knew something of drugs. These tablets are a mild depressant, but not dangerous. He put a question to the doctor, who did not answer, for he was on his knees beside the dead man, busy with his examination.

"Ask the servants to go out," said the doctor at last.

When the room was clear he rose.

"Cyanide poisoning. He was dead within thirty seconds of taking it. Give me that bottle."

The doctor emptied the rest of the tablets onto the desk, looked at them. He broke a couple of them, examined them with a lens, and smelled them.

He broke another tablet, which instead of showing a chalky white interior like the first, was blueish grey and soft.

He spilled a drop of water on it, and the faint fragrance of bruised laurel leaves which until now had hung on the close air of the room, was suddenly accentuated and became pungent. He tested the rest of the tablets.

"Every one of them hydro-Cyanic acid, except four," he said grimly. "All coated white alike. Any one of those cyanides would kill six men." He swept the tablets carefully back into the bottle, secured it with the stopper, and handed it to the Inspector.

"There's your evidence," he said, "the rest is up to you. No druggist would make such a mistake as that. There are three answers to the problem of this man's death; suicide— accident—or murder. Accident, you can rule out. No one mixes up tablets of a deadly poison in the same bottle with tablets of a harmless medicine by accident. The first thing—"

"The first thing," said Morrisey, "is to see the druggist they go to. I'll get his name. He's probably near by. The question is, how and when did he come by this bottle of tablets. If he's a customer of theirs they'll know him. Make what investigations you like meanwhile, and let nobody come in here."

(To Be Continued).

Belton—A committee has been appointed to draft by-laws for a proposed Commercial Club here.

Trade in Livestock Is Active; Prices Higher

Kansas City, Feb. 8.—Fat cattle were strong to 15 cents higher, hogs up to 25 cents, and sheep and lambs 25 cents above last week's close. This advance took light hogs into the highest position of the year, and lambs above the 13 cent mark for the first time in more than six weeks. Trade in all divisions was active and good clearances were reported. Receipts remained moderate, so that further advances are anticipated before the week end. Choice cattle were scarce, but quality of hogs and lambs was good.

Today's Receipts.

Receipts today were 13,500 cattle, 14,000 hogs and 6,000 sheep, compared with 15,000 cattle, 14,000 hogs and 5,000 sheep a week ago, and 13,400 cattle 12,450 hogs and 6,350 sheep a year ago.

Beef Cattle.

Strong to 15 cents higher prices prevailed in the fat cattle division. While the quality and condition of the offerings was fairly good there was nothing in the steer line that carried any material finish. Some good yearlings brought $11 and medium weight steers $10.60. Other fairly good steers brought $9.50 to $10.50, with ordinary kinds as low as $7.75. Texas and Oklahoma meal fed steers brought $7.50 to $11.00, the higher priced kinds showed grain feed. Demand was fully equal to the supply. Butcher cattle found a ready outlet at $7.75. Canner and cutter cows at $4 to $5 were unchanged. Heifers brought $6.50 to $9.50, but none showed high finish. Veal calves were 50 cents lower, and bulls steady.

Stockers and Feeders.

Prices for stockers and feeders were unchanged. Trade was fairly active. Inquiry for fleshy classes improved. On the basis of good fat steers fleshy feeders at $8 to $8.75 are a good buy. Choice thin stockers as well as feeders are scarce.

Hogs.

Hog prices advanced 10 to 25 cents. The largest gain was in the lighter weight kinds, though all classes were in active demand. Packers are trying to hold the market at present levels, but there is a strong demand from shippers that keeps competition keen. Today 140 to 165 pound hogs sold at $12.10 to $12.35; 165 to 250 pounds $11.85 to $12.15; 250 to 300 pounds $11.75 to $12; packing sows $10.75 to $11.25; stags $10 to $10.50 and stock hogs and pigs $12 to $12.50.

Sheep and Lambs.

The bulk of the fat lambs sold at $12.75 to $13.10; shorn wethers $8.50, wool wethers $9; ewes $8 to $8.50 and yearlings $10.50 to $11. These prices were fully 25 cents higher than last week's close and the highest for some time past. Feeding lambs sold at $12.25 to $12.50.

Not Quite True, But Bad Enough.

From National Poultry, Butter and Egg Association.

The average Nebraska farmer gets up at the alarm of a Connecticut clock, buttons his Chicago suspenders to Detroit overalls, washes his face with Cincinnati soap, sits down to a Grand Rapids table, eats Chicago bacon and Minnesota flour, cooked with Texas cottolene on a mail order stove.

He then puts on Akron rubbers, grabs his Wisconsin-made mittens, goes out to the barn and puts a New York made bridle on a Missouri mule fed on Colorado alfalfa. Hitches on to an Illinois cultivator, equipped with a Wisconsin attachment.

The soil over which he rides is plastered with a New England mortgage. Coming in to dinner, he waters the horses out of a Michigan tank, spreads his bread with Chicago oleo, using a knife made in Germany. After dinner he sharpens his shovels up with a grinder manufactured at Niagara Falls.

The R. F. D. carrier drives up and leaves the mail in an Illinois mail box, from which the farmer extracts a check received from a coop of chickens shipped to Chicago. With the check, he remits his insurance to a New York insurance company.

At bedtime, he reads a chapter out of the family Bible printed in Boston, says a prayer written in Jerusalem; crawls under a blanket knitted in New Jersey, only to be awakened by a noise in one of the Tennessee brooders. Taking down his double-barrel gun from Massachusetts, he fires an Illinois shell, the contents of which kills his cur dog, the only thing born and bred in Nebraska.

Produce Review.

(Prepared by Swift & Company).

Chicago, Feb. 8.—With favorable producing weather, eggs have declined the past few days. There was a temporary shortage last week which forced the price in both New York and Chicago to 36 cents. But today Chicago is 32½ cents and New York is 34½ cents. Unless there is a decided change in the weather, we still see lower values in the very near future, as we are now approaching the time of year when production exceeds consumption.

Due to an increased demand, there has been an advance in butter which has reduced available stocks on hand, all of which has had an effect on paying prices in the country.

There has been an increased movement of live fowl, and prices have been lower than the week previous, and the prices are largely steady at the decline. Receipts of chickens are light and a large percentage now are running staggy. Notwithstanding light receipts, the dressed poultry market was very dull and disappointing.

Hoston—A new bank—the Texas County State Bank—is being organized here with a capital stock of $30,000.

29th Child Is Born to Champion Father

Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 8.—Lee Gentle of Atlanta, whose twenty-eight children won for him the title of "champion father of Georgia," and a presentation recently to President Coolidge and congress, has added laurels, a daughter having arrived at the Gentle home Sunday. Nineteen of the twenty-nine children are living. It was hoped that a name for the new arrival would be found shortly.

Farmer, Blind in One Eye, May Lose Other

Mexico, Mo., Feb. 8.—While Clarence Dunn, farmer, of near here, who already is blind in one eye, is at Jefferson Barracks near St. Louis, receiving treatment for injuries received to his other eye, when one end of a neck yoke struck him in the face, relatives and friends have gathered thirty acres of corn for him.

Bad weather, coupled with his injury delayed his own corn "shucking" so the neighbors staged the old-fashioned "bee." With thirty-five men at work, the corn was gathered by mid-afternoon. Women of the neighborhood served a lunch.

Swimming Squirrel Seen Near Meadville

Meadville, Mo., Feb. 8.—J. T. Foster, a farmer residing southwest of here, reports that he has a swimming squirrel on his farm.

The discovery of the squirrel's prowess came, Foster said, as he watched two squirrels fighting over a nut. One of them grabbed the nut in his mouth and dashed to the stream. As the pursuer came close, the pursued squirrel jumped in the water and swam to the other side, disappearing up a tree.

The farmer and the second squirrel looked on in amazement.

Clarksville—More than 160 persons attended a banquet of the Pike County Chamber of Commerce here last week.

Cartoon Resuts in Freeing of Prisoner

Macon Man, Charged With Bootlegging, Can Thank Court Stenographer's Artistic Inclinations.

Macon, Mo., Feb. 8.—A cartoon drawn by Van Chapman, court stenographer here, had an unusual result in the trial of a case today. Two men arrested in a raid, were on trial for bootlegging. In an intermission, the stenographer sketched one of the defendants on a piece of paper, somewhat exaggerating the details of his physiognomy.

Waldo Edwards, of defense council walked over and picked up the sketch, smiled and asked the court if he might show it to the jury. Permission was granted, and the twelve men trying the case were shown the drawing.

Prosecuting Attorney Glenn Evans demanded the right to see the picture, which was handed to him. He looked at it, and then turned to the court, with a grin.

"Your honor," he said, "the state dismisses as to this man."

"Why?" asked the judge, in some surprise.

"Because," said Evans, "he has suffered enough."

The order of dismissal was duly entered, and the defendant told he could leave court without delay. The other defendant was sent to jail for thirty days.

HARDENED CRIMINALS IN BRITAIN GET SEVERE TREATMENT.

AIM IS PUNISHMENT

Only With First Offenders Is Reformation Attempted—Hard Work and Little Food the Rule.

Fifteen times as many persons probably will be murdered in New York City this year than will suffer a similar fate in all of England.

During the twelve months ending in November, 1926, there were 22 murders committed in England. During the calendar year of 1925, there were 338 instances of murder or manslaughter in New York City.

Many factors enter into the creation of this contrast. Some authorities believe that British prison methods, harsh, unrelenting, and sometimes cruel, present a compelling deterrent to the habitual murderer who is one of the greatest problems of metropolitan police officers in the United States.

The habitual murderer is the burglar or robber with a gun and inhuman readiness to use. The United Press herewith presents an authentic exposition of how the British administer their prisons in such manner that even habitual murderers are cowed and broken by rigorous discipline, brain warping work and the blows of rubber truncheons.

London, Feb. 8.—Hardened criminals in Britain are not pampered.

They receive sentences commensurate with the crime committed, the annals of crime in Britain seldom record a miscarriage of justice and from the time they are given a number instead of a name it is made known to them in divers ways that they have sinned against society and have been sent to penal establishments for punishment.

In the case of first offenders given long sentence, methods are adopted aiming at reformation of character, but should any one of them find himself again behind the bars he is treated as an "old lag" and his days until he regains his freedom are one of severe discipline and toil.

British prison officials are hard-natured men; ruthless when necessary and seldom if ever corrupt. Their renumeration is not high, but prisoners attempting bribery are sadder and wiser men after the event. Corrupt officials are not unknown in British prisons, but they are rare. Only one official has been known to accept "money for favors" in the past five years. He was given a prison sentence.

Sailors are especially sought for as prison warders. Husky, raw-boned naval men abound as officials in British prisons. For "treating 'em rough and making 'em like it" no better type is known. Discipline has permeated to their very bones, owing to their service in the navy, and they know how to hand it on to others. The bark of their voices is enough to put fear into the ordinary human being. Let an "old lag" get tough with them and his days henceforth are purgatory.

A British prison warden is nobody backed up by the governor of the prison. According to a high police official complaints by prisoners of ill-treatment are listened to, but that's about all. More often than not the complaintant is ordered peremptorily to return to his cell and told he is not in prison for the benefit of his health, but for exactly what he is complaining about. Also on occasions the governor looks on while a prisoner is being "beaten up" and seldom does he interfere.

Food given to prisoners is no more than sufficient to stay the pangs of hunger. It is not the most appetizing in the world. Vegetable soup forms a large part of the menu, as also does porridge—unsweetened. Roast meat is a luxury seldom dispensed. Green vegetables rarely find their way to the prisoners' plates. Dry bread is given in comparatively liberal quantities to fill up. Weak, unsweetened tea, coffee and cocoa is the daily beverage.

The following is a typical breakfast in one of the British prisons. Tea, a minute portion of syrup, two to three slices of dry bread, and a supply of salt. It will be noticed that butter is conspicuous by its absence. In this particular prison it came to the notice of the officials that prisoners had a tendency to spatter the butter about their cells. The allowance was immediately cut off and salt substituted. To make the bread palatable prisoners now smear it with salt. Hard, true, but it was found that abuse of food ceased.

Prisoners occasionally sham illness to avoid uncongenial tasks. Their treatment is drastic. When it is absolutely established that a prisoner is feigning sickness he is given prison sick diet. For breakfast a bowl of weak tea, two slices of dry bread and salt. Dinner consists of coffee, dry bread and what is known in prison parlance as "shadow soup." This consists of a bowl of hot water into which a teaspoonful of melted fat is added—no more than sufficient to give the water a greasy appearance. The evening meal is precisely the same as breakfast, except that cocoa is substituted for tea. Generally four days of this treatment is sufficient to have the prisoner begging to return to work, no matter of what description. Nevertheless, he is kept on "sick diet" for ten days. Prison officials state that this is an infallible cure for laziness. Prisoners with the most evil of reputations rarely if ever desire the dose repeated. State boarding is no pleasure in Britain.

The sun poked its way through the Chicago haze the other day and the picture shows the effect it had on Willie, polar bear at Lincoln Park zoo. Maybe he had been reading the Browning stories, too Anyhow, it's a pretty good exhibition of the Charleston.

Two Radio Stations to Curb Advertising

Direct Selling Appeals Won't Be Mixed With Evening Programs, KFNF and KMA Promise.

Good news for radio fans of Nodaway County as well as elsewhere was contained in the announcement yesterday that the two radio broadcasting stations of Shenandoah, Ia., KFNF and KMA, had taken the lead in eliminating direct, advertising from their night programs.

Both Henry Field ,operator of KFNF and Earl May, operator of KMA, have announced that only indirect advertising will be used at night, during the hours that most radio fans are turning their dials.

The Des Moines Register, discussing the announcement said:

"It is expected by league officials that Mr. May's example will be followed by other direct advertisers, with the result that the chief reason for adverse criticism of stations such as Mr. May's will be eliminated.

"In all probability, according to officers of the Listeners League, Mr. May's decision has provided the outstanding issue to be considered at the forthcoming midwest radio congress in Des Moines, Feb. 23 and 24.

"It is believed that less hetrodyning of crowding stations would result for the obvious reason that were all stations confined to the indirect method of advertising at night, not nearly so many could afford to stay on the air for any length of time.

"Mr. May, who was the winner of last year's gold cup popularity contest, with a vote exceeding 450,000, estimates that his immediate loss in profits will run into the thousands or even hundreds of thousands, but he says:

"'I am in radio to stay. I do not want to cause interference or hardship to any listener. I am not thinking alone of my station's clientele; I am willing and glad to observe the methods of broadcasting during the congested hours which are considered the best for radio as a whole and for the listening public in general.'

"League officers say that the decision of Mr. May is the most important event in radio affairs since the era of confusion which has resulted from lack of regularity radio legislation."

KMA will have strictly musical and entertainment programs from 9 to 11 o'clock at night, Mr. May said. There will be no direct sale talks during these hours ,the announcer said.

Mr. Field said that it was a good plan not to use direct advertising at night and that KFNF had resorted to the indirect method six weeks ago.

"At night we confine our direct advertising to the half hour known as the letter basket," said Mr. Field. "We have been doing it since the first of the year but have not said very much about it."

Mrs. J. A. Hill and Miss Alletta Devers of Skidmore were Maryville visitors today.

Dr. C. D. Koch and his son, Adolph Koch of Harrold, S. Dak., who is visiting here, went to Ford City this morning to spend the day with their daughter and sister, Mrs. P. D. A. Duncan, and family. They will visit relatives in St. Joseph tomorrow.
